

AMERICANS BOMB JAP BASE IN CAROLINES

Kavieng, New Ireland, Blasted by Many Allied Planes

Town Converted Into an Inferno, Says MacArthur

Allies Lose Eight Attacking Planes

By MURLIN SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, Feb. 17 (AP)—A heavy raid on the Japanese base at Kavieng, New Ireland, which left the town a mass of flames and cost the Allies eight planes, and consolidation of positions won in the invasion of the Green Islands, were reported by Allied headquarters today.

The Green Islands landings by the United States and New Zealand troops Monday night and Tuesday met but little resistance, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said the invaders' positions had been consolidated "without incident."

Make Town an Inferno
Medium bombers and attack planes, with fighter escort, flew through intense anti-aircraft fire to hammer Kavieng at low altitude. Besides converting the town into an inferno, the attackers sank a 3,000-ton cargo ship, three coastal vessels and several smaller craft in the harbor, destroyed or damaged five floatplanes and blasted the air-drome.

The loss of eight Allied planes to enemy ack ack was the heaviest toll ever exacted of our aircraft in many thrusts at Kavieng. Fifteen Allied planes were saved, however, by the daring crew of a navy Catalina flying boat. The crewmen put the craft in the harbor, in the face of hot fire from shore guns, to rescue their comrades.

The slow Catalina, of a type called "Dumbo" by fliers because it lingers along doing odd chores like patrolling and rescuing biers from the sea, made repeated landings and takeoffs to pick up the men.

Heroic Exploit Reported
It was one of the most heroic exploits of the Southwest Pacific war. Seldom are individuals recorded in official communique, but the Catalina crew's action received twenty-one stars in today's communique, more than was allotted to the Green Islands' consolidation.

Sixty-five tons of bombs were dropped in the Kavieng raid and 100,000 rounds of ammunition were expended in strafing the enemy. Australians flying medium bombers and escort planes hammered enemy supply areas at Jacquinot bay, on the southeast New Britain coast, with twenty-three tons of explosives. Other aerial blows on New Britain were struck at Talasea in the Williams peninsula area and Cape Hoskins, both on the North Central coast.

Willkie Says He Will Tell Truth

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Feb. 16 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie said today he is "determined to tell the truth, the bitter and realistic truth" of the cost of war, both financially and in the loss of life.

"This is no Hollywood war," he said in an address at the Great Falls civic center, "nor is it a rocking chair war. We at home cannot wage a war in comfort."

"I know that the American people want the truth, and have the moral fiber to take the facts and face up to them. I mean to tell the truth, and if I am criticized for it, that is a critic's privilege."

He declared the government is "mortgaging the future," and predicted a national debt of $300,000,000,000.

In a press conference, he said that if elected he would appoint at least one westerner to his cabinet and to "name an appropriate percentage of other federal policy-making officials" from the west.

Berlin Attacked In Record Raid

Heaviest Aerial Bombing of War

BALTIMORE, Feb. 16 (AP)—Representative Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.) said today that Japan will win the war in the Pacific unless the United Nations convince China that they are fighting to bring democracy to all nations and not simply to maintain their own power.

Addressing the advertising club of Baltimore, the former medical missionary to China declared that the Japs will be conquered only by attack on the main Japanese land forces in China.

"If the Chinese are forced to give up the fight because of losing faith in us, the way will be paved for a completely victorious Japan," he stated.

Declaring that it was bad faith for Americans to criticize Russia for not declaring war against Japan, Judd explained that such a declaration would mean that Russia would withdraw 500,000 of her best troops from Siberia and the fall of China would be inevitable.

"What we do for China in 1944 will probably decide for the next hundred years just what kind of a world will come out of this conflict," the representative predicted.

"The Russians reported the capture of Chedskoye-Zakhod in this area and large scale maps show a Zakhod on the right of land that is but two-and-a-half miles from the other shore. A little further south the neck is but a mile-and-a-half wide.

Rome Railway Yards Raided By U. S. Planes

Allies Winning, Says Alexander

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, Feb. 16 (AP)—American A-36 Invaders dive-bombed the Rome railway yards for the second straight day today and the Bari radio appealed to Italian patriots behind the German lines to further the destruction by sabotaging Nazi traffic.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander-in-chief of Allied forces in Italy, said American and British troops were winning the second round of the battle on Anzio beach-head and ultimately would smash on to Rome without assistance from the Cassino front.

Even while the invaders struck again at the freight cars of German war material and switching facilities in Rome, P-40 Warhawks bombed the ruins of the Benedictine monastery on Mt. Cassino. Artillery was reported still pouring shells into what was left of the monastery by yesterday's attack.

May Damage Roads
In its appeal, the Bari radio called for sabotage on the roads from Rome to the Anzio beachhead and the Garigliano front on the west coast and urged the Italian patriots to blow up bridges, change danger signals, cause landslides, sprinkle the road with glass, nails and sharp stones and try to fire gasoline and ammunition dumps.

"German traffic must be stopped on these roads and the railways which run along the Tyrrhenian and Adriatic coasts at any cost," it declared.

In the most cheering forecast to come from the bloody beachhead since it was established Jan. 22, Alexander told his troops there two days ago that "there is absolutely no Dunkerque here—there's no basis for pessimistic rubbish," and said that with ideal conditions Rome might have been captured quickly by the landing forces.

Nazis Realize Defeat
"I assure you the Germans opposite us here are a very unhappy party," he said, his eyes glinting with determination. "The Germans realize they've lost the battle, though events have not gone as swiftly as we ourselves hoped. Had everything been perfect we might have gone straight through to Rome in the first round."

"As it is, we are near the end of the second round and we are winning it. The third round will come when we've built up for a strong push, have gathered our forces and started our punch. We will put it off. Don't compare this situation to Dunkerque or Salerno."

Patrol Monastery Area
Coincident with this encouraging news from the beachhead, which otherwise had been blanketed in semi-silence for several days, word came that American doughboys were "aggressively patrolling" the area around the Benedictine monastery on Mt. Cassino, all but obliterated by American bombs and shells yesterday.

Artillery was reported still pouring shells into the smoking ruins today, but it was possible that Yank infantry was climbing toward the rubble and would effect its capture soon. An Allied spokesman said that "breaches" had been made in the Nazi defenses there.

Aerial photographs showed that the monastery buildings were destroyed except for a small part of the white, ten-foot-thick wall on the west side. There was little chance that German artillery observers or machine-guns still were operating from the ruins. Flying Fortresses alone scored thirty-five direct hits on the abbey with 500-pound bombs and another fifty hits with incendiaries. Not taking into account additional damage done by 150 medium bombers later in the day.

British Editors Score Censorship
LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The British press tonight blamed high military and political officials—both American and British—for pessimism over the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead battle and called the new censorship regulations governing Italian frontline dispatches "stupid" and "intolerable."

"If there was any pessimism it was not, as Alexander (Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy) has implied, the fault of the correspondents on the spot but of highly placed American and British authorities," the News Chronicle said. "For five days last week most of the gloomy and disconcerting statements were being made from President Roosevelt downwards."

Civilian Killed By Gun Explosion
ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md., Feb. 16 (AP)—Willis Johnson, 30, of Havre de Grace, was killed and three other civilian employees at the Aberdeen proving ground were injured today when a gun blew up during a routine test, Aberdeen officials said.

Two Waves of Russian Planes Bomb Helsinki and Cause Numerous Fires
STOCKHOLM, Feb. 16 (AP)—Two waves of Russian planes bombed Helsinki tonight and caused fire and damage to the Finnish capital from which rumors of maneuvers for a separate peace have been emanating since it was last attacked on Feb. 6.

Reports to the Swedish press said that fifty Russian planes in the first formation kept the city under alert from 5 to 10 p. m.

The second attack, which appeared heavier, began at 11 p. m. and ended shortly before midnight. Dispatches said that heavy anti-aircraft fire forced some of the bombers to drop their loads outside the city.

The attack was described as medium by the Helsinki correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter in a brief phone call to Stockholm.

Must Defeat Jap Army--MacArthur

Blockade, Bombing, Held Not Enough

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, Feb. 17 (AP)—Blockade and bombing alone will not defeat Japan, Gen. MacArthur declared today while Allied forces consolidated easily won positions in the Green Islands. Their surprise move strategically completed the Solomon campaign and further loosened Japan's grip on the Southwest Pacific.

MacArthur's statement evidently was inspired by recent allied successes in this area, including the occupation of the Green Islands, in which blockade and bombardment have been important factors.

Large Force Needed
"We must defeat Japan's army and for that purpose our strategy must devise ways and means to bring our ground forces into contact with it at decisive points," said the supreme commander in the South and Southwest Pacific. "The strongest military element of Japan is the army, which must be defeated before our success is assured. This can only be done by the use of large ground forces. It's useless and misleading to talk of short cuts. They do not exist."

While conceding that blockade and bombing are "powerful weapons," MacArthur said "decisive results in modern war can only be achieved through the combined efforts of all three forces—ground, naval and air. x x x We delude ourselves if we plan otherwise."

22,000 Japs Isolated
The almost unopposed move Monday night into the Green Islands, at the northern end of the Solomon archipelago, isolated an estimated 22,000 Japanese in the Solomons from Rabaul, their base of supplies. It ended the campaign for the Solomons, begun Aug. 7, 1942 at Guadalcanal, "for all strategic military purposes," said the official communique.

Fifth and Sixth Bond Drives Planned
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—With the $14,000,000,000 fourth war loan barely ended, treasury officials disclosed tonight that plans already are under way not only for the fifth but the sixth war loan as well.

Neither dates nor quotas have been decided, but the best guess appears to be early June as the starting time for the next campaign.

Bond Quota Passed
BALTIMORE, Feb. 16 (AP)—Maryland has gone over the top in its Fourth War Loan campaign quota by twenty-four per cent, with every county exceeding its designated goal in bond sales, Howard W. Jackson, state chairman of the War Finance committee, announced today.

Senate Outlaws Subsidy Payments
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—The Senate quickly gave final approval today to legislation outlawing subsidy payments to hold down the cost of food, one of the administration's chief weapons in its stabilization program.

The subsidy repealer, hitched to a measure extending the life of the Commodity Corporation, now goes to the House where prompt acceptance tomorrow is expected.

Landlord Unable To Please Tenants
NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—Having received 2,340 tenants' complaints of no heat in a single day, authorities were started by the protest of one tenant.

He said he was too hot because the landlord insisted on maintaining a temperature of 80 to 90 degrees.

Three-Year-Old Boy Eats a War Bond
DALLAS, Feb. 16 (AP)—William Simpson Dallas, sent his grandson, 3-year-old William Byrd Thompson, a $25 war bond.

The youngster, in Little Rock with his parents, Lieut. and Mrs. Tazewell Thompson, got hold of the bond.

He ate it.

Said grandfather, "I'm not really surprised. He ate a five-dollar bill once before."

Nimitz Reports Deepest Thrust Against Enemy

Other Nip Bases Reported Raided

By WILLIAM HIPPLE

PEARL HARBOR, Feb. 16 (AP)—American Seventh Air Force Liberators attacking Ponape, an important Japanese base in the Carolines, Feb. 14 in the deepest thrust yet into enemy territory launched by land-based planes in the Pacific war.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, in announcing the daring raid on a base 573 air miles west of Kwajalein, said the attack was made at noon in "considerable force."

Sink Cargo Ship
Liberators dropped more than fifty-five tons of bombs on installations and sank a small cargo ship in the harbor.

Surprisingly, United States planes encountered no fighter opposition. All returned.

Admiral Nimitz also announced that Seventh Air Force Liberators, Mitchell's, Dauntless dive bombers and Warhawks, and fleet air wing two search planes continued to hit enemy bases in the Marshalls Feb. 14 and 15, bombing installations on five atolls.

A navy search plane also bombed Mejit island in the eastern Marshalls for the first time on Feb. 14.

The attack on Ponape took United States planes only 410 miles from Truk, Japan's big naval base.

Farthest Drive West
Except for carrier plane attacks on Marcus Island and Japan itself, this was the farthest West American planes have hit in the Central Pacific.

Ponape is approximately 2,581 air miles southwest of Pearl Harbor. Japanese installations probably are built on the north side, where there is a protected anchorage in the shadow of a 900-foot cliff which the Japanese are believed to use as a major naval base.

Ponape is one of the two administration centers for the eastern group of islands in the Caroline group. The other center is Truk itself.

With an area of 130 square miles, Ponape is the largest of the Carolines, mandated to Japan by the League of Nations after the first World war. It has been called Japan Gibraltar, because of the fortified rock that guards the best harbor among the islands in the lagoon.

Synthetic Vitamins Held Not Essential
BALTIMORE, Feb. 16 (AP)—Dr. E. V. McCollum, internationally known nutrition authority, declared today that synthetic vitamins, the commercial advertisement of which, he charged, had reached the "disgraceful planes of the old patent medicine days" were not essential to proper diet.

Mrs. Nora Goner, 76, Seeks GOP Nomination
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Nora E. Goner, 76, filed her candidacy today for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I want the president's job better done," said Mrs. Goner, who gave her occupation as a domestic. "All my life I have been preparing for this. I can do it better."

13 Army Nurses, 17 Men, Spend Two Months Dodging Germans in Balkans
A UNITED STATES AIR BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 9 (Delayed) (AP)—A party of flying nurses, officers and men, who dodged German fighter planes, artillery shells and road patrols for two terror-filled months after their transport plane became lost in a storm and crashed landed in November in mountainous Albania, was brought back to safety today.

Thirteen nurses and seventeen men were in the party.

A British naval launch in a perilous midnight foray along the rocky, enemy-held coast evacuated the group without incident—thus giving a calm ending to one of the most unusual adventures of the war.

Besides the nurses, the group included members of the transport crew and a number of T-3 flying hospital orderlies, who assist the wounded in air evacuation of the wounded.

Yankee Senorita

BY LORENA CARLETON

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT
Mallory Baker did get out of bed
now at Senora Estrada's words.
Rather, she leaped out. "Give up my singing?" she repeated incredulously.

"Not as a talent, my dear, but as a career."
The girl was not appeased. "That is out of the question."
"It is the most important issue

Your life with my son will not leave you time for a career. Too mallory," she said modestly. "we are an important family and that would not fit in."

"Not fit in? I'm the most famous singer in my country, probably in the world," she said with childish hurt. Latham's words came back to her. Without warning she began to cry, deep, wretched sobs that shook her and made her words jumping sounds. After a few minutes, during which the older woman let her weep without interruption, Mallory said jerkily, "I don't see how I can bear it. Oh, I don't see how I can bear it." And the hot tears ran down her face again. "How can I give him up?"

Senora Estrada took the shudder-ing girl into her arms. She could feel her damp cheek against her own powdered one. "But you don't have to give him up. You're just shocked, dear. Manuella and I kept telling Carlos to give you some idea of your future. And he kept putting it off, afraid of losing you.
I suppose."

The girl drew a long breath
"And so he has."
"No, no," crooned the woman.
"You'll feel better in a few days.
There is no blessing like a happy marriage, Mallory."

"I have been blessed." The shaking in Mallory's body was a bit less noticeable. "Blessed with one of the most glorious voices a woman ever had. That doesn't come to everyone.
It isn't even made with practice drudgery as instrumental artists are." Not unkindly, but determinedly, she pulled away from the arms of Carlos' mother. "You would have saved time if you had mentioned in the first place, Senora Estrada, that I would be expected to give up my work." She looked directly into the woman's exquisite brown eyes. "Carlos knows you are here, doesn't he?" His mother nodded, obviously wishing she did not have to admit that he knew. "Then tell him," Mallory said, "not to telephone me, I'll not be here. And please, would you go, too, senora?

I'm afraid I'm going to be very sick in my stomach."

She was miserably. But in about an hour she was giving orders with such vicious rapidity that Prism muttered, "I wish I hadn't been so unlucky to you when you were sick." Immediately she regretted it, for her mistress, without retorting, began that awful weeping that she had listened to through closed doors when Velvet Name's mother was there. "Aw, Miss Mallory," the Negress wailed, "cut that out. Bawl me out, Miss Mallory. Please bawl me out."

"Just keep on packing," the girl wobbled through her sobs. "Get Mr.
Alexander on the phone and tell him to fly back. Find out if Mr.
Patrick has picked up my checks.
And get the car greased and ready to leave."

"Okey-dokey, Miss Mallory, but I got only two hands. And please stop that bawling. You're cuttin' my heart out."

That was the way she felt herself, Mallory realized. As if her heart had been cut right out of her. She felt as if death itself had snatched Carlos from her and, in a way, it was death. Death to love and a permanent one, for between them were insurmountable objects.
Prism worked frenziedly. So did Mallory, between her fits of weeping. Yet it was after 5 o'clock when they pulled away from the Montecristo. Prism had taken care of Carlos' telephone call with, "She done flew out town," and a chain of
"I don't know, sir."

Now she sat beside her mistress, peering alternately at maps and signposts. "You ain't headed right."

Miss Mallory. You're goin' toward Guernavaca."

"And Taxco. That's right, Prism.
That's where I want to go." She heard her maid sign as if pleased.
The sun set when they were a little past Talpam. Dusk came quickly, especially after La Cima, where they began a drop of some 2,000 feet. Something about the scene seemed familiar to the girl. It was, she realized, a combination of the dusk, the loneliness, the rugged growth akin to that she had seen while driving to Monterrey. But there was something more, "uition."

She slowed her car. Of course that could be a clump of tall bushes up ahead of her. Nevertheless she pulled to the side of the road and cut off her almost silent engine.

To her maid she said apologetically, "Prism, I feel like a hysterical idiot, but that looks like a car down the road."

The Negress peered ahead. "Miss Mallory, I think you done had so much worry and grief you're seein' things."

For some reason she turned and looked through the back window.
"That looks like a car back that-away, too."

"Yes," agreed Mallory, gazing in the same direction as Prism. "All right, I'll go on." She started her engine and moved with slow caution. "But I'm not dashing into anything this time."

"Oh-oh," she gasped in a frightened whisper, "looks as if you were right, Prism." Back of them in the spot that Prism had mentioned casually there also were automobile lights.

"This is one time I ain't carin' bout bein' right, Miss Mallory. Just let's get outa here."

"The car is so long," cried the girl. With feverish haste she backed, yanking at the steering wheel to make the next forward turn accomplish her purpose. Meanwhile the car farther toward Taxco had been making the same maneuvers.

Doubtless a more adroit driver was back of its wheel, for it swerved easily and headed back toward the city while Mallory still struggled. As if in a frozen nightmare, she heard the screeching brakes as the other machine came upon her convertible, where it blocked the narrow highway.

"Get back!" she screamed at the other car. Her fear had her so paralyzed that her voice was not the jellified thing she had expected.
"Let me get turned."

A man leaped from the other machine. "Good lord, Mallory, do you have to see everything?" It was Richard Blythe, in dinner clothes.

In the limousine back of him she could distinguish other white shirt-fronts.

In the windshield of Blythe's car the girl saw the lights of the one that has been behind her. "What's going on around here, anyway?"
"Mallory, get your car turned again and go on where you had started. Just don't look into any ditches. I told you they did things in a hurry down here when they

Some Exemplary Demonstrations

THE 25,000-MILE "KEEP 'EM ROLLING TOUR" of the American Automobile Association is carrying the vital message of war-time motor vehicle conservation to the Pacific coast this month. With an itinerary running into forty-five states, two decorated demonstration cars are scheduled to arrive in Denver today.

In addition to the conservation note, the tour, which will traverse all kinds of roads, will give a complete demonstration of new synthetic tires and recaps with which both cars are equipped. It is announced as an effort to show what synthetic tires and recaps can do if properly used and what happens when they are abused.

The nation-wide trip also will furnish a realistic inventory and listing of factual data concerning passenger car transportation after two years of war.

It is a splendid educational effort which is not without usefulness in the political field. Some splendid examples of efficiency, economy and practical operation of government are now being given by the government of the various states of the union from which federal administrators might well take much-needed lessons. More than half of these states have Republican governors, many of them supported by Republican administrations. But even in some of the other states there is a vast difference between their governmental operation and that which characterizes the central government, particularly in the evidences they as well as the others have given of a rugged determination to preserve the principle of states' rights.

Rome Not the Immediate Goal of the Allies

THE FACTOR that gave rise to pessimism regarding the Anzio beachhead as soon as the Nazis started to apply pressure, is that everybody outside the inner military circles of the Allies leaped to the conclusion that the beachhead was created to speed the taking of Rome. It seems now that Rome was not the immediate goal of the invaders.

The Allies did not land enough troops and equipment to make an attack on Rome and occupy it. The beachhead was intended as a threat to the communications of the Nazis entrenched in the mountains sixty miles to the south. The main Allied attacking armies were having slow, painful work dislodging them.

The Allies went in at Anzio to threaten the rear of the Germans and force them to withdraw from their mountain stronghold. That would have enabled the main Allied forces to advance on Rome.

If the Allied beach landing had had Rome as its main objective, it would have fanned out immediately. But the landing force merely advanced to the Appian Way and then began consolidating. As a result the Nazis kept all their divisions in the mountains and brought more divisions down from the north to engage the Anzio beachhead invaders.

The entire Italian campaign, with its limited forces, argues that the greatest Allied military enterprise is being prepared in Britain. There are not enough trained divisions in the Mediterranean to blitz the Nazis in that sector. The main attack on the Nazis will descend in another sector.

What worries the Nazis is that they do not know where or when the blow will fall. Hitler's strategy undoubtedly is to maintain sufficient mobile divisions to be sped to the point of danger in the shortest possible period of time.

Convention Flings Won't Stay Down

IT appears that the Office of Defense Transportation has encountered the real thing in its stand on conventions. It is doing all it possibly can to discourage them. It would like to call off man, but there is a little snag in the Bill of Rights concerning the right of the people "peaceably to assemble."

The O. D. T. reports that last year the number of conventions was reduced by approximately one-half but that this year the record isn't starting out so good for the O. D. T. It points out that conventions entail clattering up transportation, denuding restaurants of food and doing many things that disrupt war life. When the O. D. T. spots a scheduled convention, it writes to the directors of the organization asking them if it were possible to postpone the gathering until the United Nations hold a convention in Berlin.

The O. D. T. says that the replies are discouraging. Convention-minded folk favor a return to gregarious outings where toasts, resolutions, banquets and floor shows pep up sagging spirits and send the delegates home gravely concerned over something. The O. D. T. urges the spellbinders to consign their speeches to pamphlets or trade magazines and maintains that local events could replace the other convention features.

But the O. D. T. is up against a tough battle. It probably will get its ears knocked down by folk who have gone without a convention fling just about as long as they can stand it.

A Common Pattern For Our Cheeses

MANY PERSONS prefer a snappy, flavored cheese rather than a mild or bland sort. The snap, or rich taste, in cheese is due to ageing for a year or more.

But, the Office of Price Administration refuses to permit cheese manufacturing companies to charge more for snappy cheese, which, of course, costs more to produce, so consumers can have nothing new but fresh, tasteless cheese in their markets.

It may be wondered why this is necessary as a wartime requirement, under the excuse of which the order rests. One observer dryly remarks that it is done because the cost of living must be held down—at least until after the coming election. Still, the other type of cheese would be available if the aged type were.

Could it be that this regulation stems from the general program to check individuality and to promote regimentation by leveling down the tastes, discrimination and appreciation of the individual where his food products are concerned and thus further impair free enterprise?

Maybe the O. P. A. reformers have a sensible wartime reason for this prohibition. If they have, it hasn't been explained as yet and for the sake of our conception of individual rights it should be trotted out.

An Appealing Note For Paunchy Men

THE LITTLE EXTRA TOUCH, the added convenience, the modernistic flair always characterized manufacturing ingenuity in the days before the Pearl Harbor attack started a vast change in the things we use and wear. We are to have them back, of course, when the war is over, and it appears that we shall have plenty of them.

There is, for instance, the word from Chicago that postwar clothes for men will include adjustable waistline trousers that look good when a man is standing up and feel good when he is sitting down. These more comfortable future for the paunches of American manhood was predicted at a style conference of the Merchant Tailors and Designers Association of America, Inc.

It is a comforting thought, indeed, for middle-aged and older men as well as for the more robust younger ones. Now if ways and means can be figured out to the point of assurance that these men will be able to get the pants, everything will be jake.

A joker in the treaty signed by Washington and Mexico concerning use of water of the Rio Grande is that it contains no mention of the right to use the name for song titles.

A Berlin radio speaker says Hitler knows everything. Then he ought to know that nobody believes bunk like that.

Perhaps, instead of rebuilding Berlin after the war, they will merely erect a marker.

Sweetness Out of Gravel

By MARSHALL MASLIN

It was a good experience and I am grateful. . . I visited a vineyardist and he took me through the great cool buildings where his wine was stored and into his bottling plant and let me see his men putting the clear, golden juice of the grape into the bottles—and told me frankly that ninety per cent of the virtue of his wine depended upon having the right grapes grown in the right soil.

Marshall Maslin

Then he showed me his fields. . . We stood in a flat valley and looked across his vineyards to rolling hills. Hundreds of acres in that valley were planted to grapes, the best section in all my native state for the production of white wine. "This," I thought to myself, "must be very fertile soil indeed."

But when I looked down to the earth at my feet I was amazed. . . It was hardly more than gravel. The land in which those grapevines grew was a mass of pebbles and rocks with soil between. And the vintner told me that over on some other slopes it was even rockier, too difficult even to plough. "Yet into this 'soil' for more than 50 years, the vines had been thrusting their roots, producing the lush green foliage, creating the great clusters of grapes, bursting with juice. Nearly sixty years before his father had looked upon that land, recognized it for what it was, known it was good wine grape land, had bought it and planted the right grapes in the right place."

And, standing there, I thought how often we fail in judgment because we fail in understanding. . . We believe that the best fruit of living must grow out of ease, security, comfort, popularity, peace, happiness. Such soil as that, we think, is essential for the finest flowering of the human spirit. . . And we believe that often the loveliest, most useful, most enduring creations of man have come out of struggle and hardship, derision and doubt, conflict and agony. Something within us is as wise as my friend's fine grape vines. Sometime knows that man's spirit may grow as sturdily in the gravel as in the rich loam.

The corn in the loose earth of the prairie is good, but the sweet grapes that grow in the rocks of the foothills—those, too, are sweet as they burst on the tongue. . . And if a man seeks devoutly he will find the right place at last in which to grow and become what he is meant to be.

New Liberalism Is Revolution Lesson In Mallon's View

By PAUL MALLON

(Note: In accord with requests, some of Paul Mallon's outstanding columns are being reprinted during his brief rest.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—We are faced with world revolution as well as a world war. It will not be over when the war is over. We must plan our way.

It is not a new revolution, not alone a political revolution, but a revolution of ethics and culture. It started unnoticeably back in the revolutionary philosophies of Nietzsche and Freud, as well as Marx.

While Marx is the glorified prophet of the anti-democratic societies which have sprung into being in ever-widening scope since the last war, Nietzsche and Freud are the non-political re-socializers whose so-called enlightenment lured great masses of people away from their ethics and social ways and plunged them into this dazzling materialistic era in which we are now groping our way toward yet indiscernible solutions.

The Soviets first brought these revolutionary theories into practice in a way which aims at every foundation of our historic democratic way of life—not only toward the abolition of capitalism, but the uprooting of our conceptions of moral justice which were founded on the Ten Commandments and Christian teachings.

I say this now without criticism, but as pure statement of fact, for we must discard both criticism and prejudice if we are to see where we are now, or where we are going. Today, weighed truth is the scarcest article yet unrationed—or has it been rationed by censorship? The communist experiment has not drifted into socialism in Russia, but, on the way, it inspired such counteracting, imitating systems of single-headed materialism as fascism in Italy and nazism in Germany.

Pacism or nazism will be stamped out or chased underground as a hunted minority. But Russia is apt to come out of this war the dominant nation of Europe and Asia, and, in my opinion, in the following years, she is apt to become the greatest nation on earth.

Russia would be the last nation on earth to be swayed in her policies by emotionalism, so we must look at these things as coldly and as straight as she does. And we must get our people to look at them the same way.

Greatest in History
This is the greatest revolution in the history of the world and its philosophies have encroached upon this hemisphere into your mind and mine. We have borrowed greatly from the totalitarianism this revolution preaches as its first commandment.

We have inched our democratic way closer and closer toward centralized federal government controls in various ways, even toward socialism a little, and certainly we—by our new laws and federal actions—are far down the road toward establishing that the state is no longer the creature of man, but the man is the creature of the state.

To meet the revolution, the government seems to have primarily in mind some kind of a new social security and labor union democracy for postwar.

Kirke L. Simpson Says:

German Resistance on Beachhead May Be Prelude to Early Retreat

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Blister Nazi resistance at the Anzio beachhead and the Cassino front in Italy may be in reality rear-guard actions to cover an impending general German retreat to a new and shortened defense line.

That at least is suggested by the cheerful confidence of General Alexander, Allied field commander in Italy. Having won the first and second rounds of the battle of Rome, his Anglo-American-French forces are about ready to open round three he told press interviewers at Anzio.

Alexander Confident

"It will come," he added, "when we have built up for a strong punch and start our punch. We will pull it off."

The plain intimation of the Alexander forecast is that the third round will come as a three front attack. He dismissed as "pessimistic rubbish" gloomy unofficial reports of the situation at the beachhead and assured his hearers that "the Germans opposite us here (at Anzio) are a very unhappy party."

Even lacking knowledge of Allied battle plans in Italy, the resources available to carry them out, and his probable information as to impending Nazi moves, there are many straws to show that an ill wind is blowing up for the foe. The stern necessity that forced Allied destruction of the ancient old abbey crowning Mount Cassino and dominating the Lira valley gateway to Rome was that of getting on with the battle of Rome. That concerted fury of Allied air and shell bombardment served definite notice on the enemy of a coming triple-threat attack with the Cassino, Anzio, and Adriatic flank operations merged into a single assault.

Germans May Retreat

Linked with Alexander's summary of the situation, reports of Nazi behind-the-line demolition activities on the relatively quiet Eighth army sector suggest the next Allied major stroke is expected there by the Nazis. The implication is that the Germans are preparing to fall back on that flank before Fifth army elements on the Cassino-Anzio fronts can break through to effect a junction that might entrap the Nazi left flank.

Cut off from the Rome communications hub by an Allied penetration to the Rome-Pescara highway and rail connections, the plight of German forces facing the Eighth army would be serious. Having failed to do more than push the Anzio beachhead army down temporarily, the force of the Nazi counterattack there waned sharply. If it ever was intended as more than a holding operation, which is doubtful, it has degenerated.

The various chairmen, dressed to represent their committees gave short talks. Mrs. Raymond Minke, publicity, portrayed a news carrier; Mrs. M. J. Wilson, art appreciation, carried a tray of antique art objects; Mrs. Marvin Hinkle, reading, had a costume made of popular magazines; and as victory garden, wore a house dress and bonnet and carried a basket with seeds and garden implements. Mrs. Robert Wilson, fair, carried her exhibits from the fair; Mrs. James Michaels, recreation, was bouncing a large rubber ball; Mrs. Prentiss McElfish, home furnishing, was attired in drapery and carried book ends; Mrs. Ray Smith, clothing, was attired in a costume several sizes too small for her, to stress the necessity of knowing suitable clothes for oneself; Mrs. Perrin, secretary-treasurer, carried a large ledger, pencil and money box; and as music leader, carried a baton and directed the group singing of "Smiles," with Mrs. Harry Wilson at the piano.

A song based on popular songs entitled "Heart Throb," was won by Mrs. Harry Wilson; and Mrs. Marvin Hinkle and Mrs. Mary Rose tied for the sandwich game. Joan Minke represented the 4-H club at the meeting which was attended by twelve members and two visitors.

Mrs. Prentiss McElfish will be hostess for the meeting March 21 when a St. Patrick's day program will be presented and Irish songs sung.

Cresap Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will hold a rummage sale March 4 and 5 and all the money raised will be donated to the National Red Cross blood plasma fund. Plans were formulated and the committee in charge appointed by Miss Fan Lloyd, regent, at the meeting of the chapter, yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John A. Findlay, South Centre street. Mrs. John M. Robb will be chairman and will be assisted by Mrs. G. Wilbur Seymour, Mrs. Lewis Wilson, Mrs. Findlay, Mrs. Joseph Lichtenstein and Mrs. Arthur Dixon.

The sum of $19.70 was presented to Miss Lloyd for the blood plasma fund. It was raised by parties at the homes of Mrs. William Claus, Mrs. Lichtenstein and Mrs. Findlay. Plans were also made for members to be in attendance at the Washington headquarters in Riverside Park, Greene street, Feb. 22, when it will be open all day.

Mrs. Jim McKeown, Red Cross production chairman, was the guest speaker at the meeting. She spoke on the work being done by the production group and appealed for donations of more materials, for she said, if more material is not obtained work would have to stop in April. She was introduced by Mrs. Claus. The chapter, which has been doing Red Cross work for the past several months, displayed the four knee robes; twenty pairs of slippers and several dozen smaller articles which have been completed.

The program under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Henry included the reading by Mrs. Marshall Miller of Edward Markham's poem, "Lincoln the Commoner"; and two pieces, "The Liberty Bell the Second," and "Little Kindness," by Miss Ida Brandier.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Walter Pierce and Mrs. Lichtenstein. Flowers centered the table and the American Revolution formed a background.

ST. MARY'S MUSIC CLUB PRESENTS PATRIOTIC PROGRAM

The St. Mary's Music Club held a program on "Music in Wartimes," featuring patriotic selections in keeping with the Washington and Lincoln holidays, yesterday at the school auditorium. Barbara Davis read a paper on "Music in Wartimes," and in the course of her speech mentioned various patriotic pieces and gave a short synopsis of each. As she named them members of the club played them.

They included "Yankee Doodle," a piano solo by Barbara Martin; "Dixie," by Mary Russell; "Battle Cry of the Republic," clarinet solo by James Van, with Regina Britt at the piano; "America," by Ann Buzzer; "America the Beautiful," James King; "Hail Columbia," violin, by Jo Ann Coyle and Lois Keiring, with Joan Martin at the piano.

Next, Mary Margaret King played a piano solo of "America First," introducing the "Star Spangled Banner," and "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp." Raymond Wempe played the Marine Hymn; and Francis Murphy, "Columbia Gem of the Ocean," as a coronet solo, with his sister, Rose Marie at the piano; and Eileen Carey played the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The Junior orchestra played two numbers, "America," and "America the Beautiful," and the entire assembly sang the National Anthem, "Over There," and "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere."

Sister Merici, principal, addressed the club stressing how morale is kept high with singing or playing patriotic pieces. Velma Grassi, sketching the life of Joan Philip Sousa pointed out how he is known as the "March King." A social hour concluded the program and refreshments were served.

Boy Scout Troop No. 71 Has Party in Ridgeley

Plans for Future Activities Are Made at Anniversary Meeting

Activities for Boy Scout Troop No. 71 of Calvary Methodist church, Ridgeley, W. Va., were formulated at the troop party, celebrating its second year of scouting, Tuesday evening at the church hall. As a feature of future meetings, the boys plan to make their own tents and other equipment for camping this summer.

The plans include a "Father and Son" banquet and a court of honor, both to be held in April, and each boy will be advanced one rank. The troop will again take over the government of the town for one day. The first class scouts will make a three day camping trip to Deep Creek Lake sometime in June. There will also be several overnight trips to prepare for the camporee.

Two new members, Ronald Hoelzer and Donald Loy, were received into the troop Tuesday evening, using the unique rope ceremony. The rope was made by the boys as a part of the ceremony. The troop now has sixteen members; a committee of eight members; besides the scoutmaster and two assistants.

The camporee ribbon was presented to the Ranger Patrol by Commissioners, James Thayer and Frank Tippen, Cumberland.

The display of the boys work at the I. H. Bane store window was discussed as well as the part the troop took in the church service Sunday evening.

"His Butler's Sister" Stars Deanna Durbin

When you see Deanna Durbin making a wry face and at the same time pretending that she is enjoying eating a kipper in her new Universal picture, "His Butler's Sister," now on the screen of the Liberty theater, she won't be kidding.

According to the script, Deanna is supposed not to like kipper, but she has to pretend that she does. And pretending is exactly what she was doing when the scene was shot. If there is anything Deanna doesn't like, it's kipper.

So Director Frank Borzage insisted that real kipper be used for the scene. "That will make it very obvious that you are only pretending to like it," he told the star.

"Oklahoma Kid" Now Showing at Garden

Currently playing at the Garden theater is "The Oklahoma Kid," re-issued by Warner's by popular request. The large and excellent cast is headed by James Cagney and Humphrey Bogart, who received fine support from Donald Crisp and Rosemary Lane.

The co-feature is "Next of Kin," a timely subject showing the disastrous effects of loose talk. A commando raid that failed is one of the most stirring sequences in the picture. Guy Mas, Basil Sidney and Mary Clare are starred.

Navy Seabees' Mascot Is Lad Six Years Old

Everyone in the cast of Republic's "The Fighting Seabees," story of the courageous men who make up the youngest branch of service, read the letter from Chief Petty Officer Jimmy Carrick when it arrived during the filming of the picture.

Thousands of Seabees throughout the world were interested in the making of the screen play, which is currently showing at the Maryland theater, because it is the first filmed story of the construction battalion, but Jimmy Carrick's letter was special. Chief Petty Officer Carrick is the mascot of the Seabees. He is just six years old, and a spinal infection has kept him in bed most of his young life.

BY LORENA CARLETON

Finally are convinced. The car back of you holds your soda pop salesman. Guarding you, princess. He clasped her hand tightly. "Don't Bertha's place is easy to find in Taxo and one of her specials is just what 'Dr. Blythe recommends for you."

"I might have known I'd find you here," the singer said to Tod Patrick. It was a little past 8 o'clock. She had registered, then strolled

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly silences the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. beneath the laurel trees in the plaza over to Dona Bertha's cantina. She sat down beside him at the old-fashioned covered table and watched the staid woman mix a drink, in response to Tod Patrick's lifted hand.

"What better place could I be?" he asked when the girl's drink, also a fresh one for him, were put before him. "I've had a marvelous rest. You were right, Malory. Mexico truly is the land for a vacation." "But you've rested long enough. You should be attending to your work." She took a swallow of her drink, then a couple more. "And what about me? You don't even show interest. You didn't even come to my last concert." To hide her trembling chin she took more of the Bertha Special.

"I was afraid you might call me Legree."

"It's not right for you to lazy around while I have to work. And go through all sorts of things." Her chin was trembling again; she gave it the tequila treatment. "Murder," she said.

He said nonchalantly. "Yes, Prism told me about that. Don't get excited because you were unfortunate enough to witness such a scene. Those things happen occasionally on American highways and you fail to tear your hair."

"Oh, Tod, stop criticizing me. I've been criticized enough." Her eyes were drenched with tears. She turned away.

"I'll bet she has," the man thought. "Someone has talked the bitter truth to her, just as Manuella talked it to me that day she came down here to find me. But I Industries."

can't tell Malory. Not yet, anyway. Perhaps never."

He eyed her scrubbed face. "Malory, do you have a cold or hay fever?" "Neither. And you know it, you unmitigated dope! I'm crying." Her words sounded as if they were balanced on the tool of a steel riveter. "You didn't even give me a Christmas present."

"It's not Christmas. Not until the sixth, but if you're going to post I'll give it to you now." He took a box from his pocket and showed her the ring inside. "National pawnshop, so don't worry about strings attached." It was a clear but fiery ruby, surrounded by diamonds. "One for each year."

"Twenty-six," she admitted, grinning through her tears. She looked aside at her manager, recalling Richard Blythe's advice that he seemed so crazy then. "Go into his arms and see what happens," he had suggested. She'd have to try that some time. Later, of course.

When Price Ceilings Were Revolutionary

PITTSBORO, N. C. (AP)—In 1774, courts in Chatham county, N. C., put ceilings prices on just about everything, from meals and lodging to oats and spirits.

Lodging in a good feather bed was set at seven cents a night. A hot dinner with beer or cider cost 27 cents.

A few years later, because of the Revolutionary war a night's lodging rose to twenty cents and a dinner cost $1.

Canada has almost one and one-half million women employed in war industries.

Republicans Working On Farm Platform

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP)—The Republican party's farm experts began preliminary talks today looking to an agreement on a detailed agriculture plank for submission to the national convention. Among other things, the plank would call for:

- 1—Increased farm production.
 - 2—Decentralization of federal control.
 - 3—Considering agriculture as a "non-partisan" economic question.
- Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, vice chairman of the Republican postwar advisory council's committee on agriculture, created last September at Mackinac island, Mich., conferred at the capitol with two other committee members, Reps. August H. Andresen, Minnesota, and Clifford R. Hope, Kansas. He previously had lunched with Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the Republican National Committee and members of the Iowa House delegation.

Spangler said an announcement on the farm plank study would be forthcoming within a few days.

2,300 Enfield Rifles For State Guard

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 16—(AP)—

The federal government has allocated 2,300 United States Army Enfield rifles to the Maryland state guard. Governor O'Connor announced today.

The rifles, with a supply of ammunition, will replace shot guns which have been the chief equipment of the guard since Pearl Harbor, O'Connor added.

The shot guns will be returned to the federal government upon completion of the rifle distribution, although members of the guard may purchase them for their private use if they wish, the governor said.

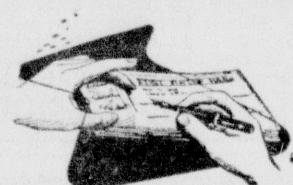

It is estimated that the number of students enrolled in teachers colleges has decreased from 175,000 to 72,000 in the last three years.

From where I sit . . .

by Joe Marsh

Sure's a lot of talk going around nowadays about post-war planning . . . folks passing resolutions . . . statesmen holding conferences . . . governments making promises to each other.

But as Bert Childers says: "What good is all this drawing up of plans unless each one of us decides to make his corner of the world a better place to live in?"

From where I sit, Bert's put the problem in a nutshell. Governments can pass all the resolutions and make all the treaties they can think of—and it's still up to the people themselves to see to it that the world is ruled by tolerance and understanding.

Unless we make up our minds to respect the other fellow's rights and liberties—whether it's the right to enjoy a glass of beer occasionally or the right to vote according to our conscience—all our post-war planning won't be worth the paper that it's printed on.

Frostburg Will Conduct Salvage Drive Saturday

Additional Men and Trucks Are Needed To Help Boy Scouts

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Feb. 16.—Frostburg residents are preparing for the paper salvage drive to be held here Saturday, February 19. Numerous homes and business places have been saving their paper since the last drive and seem pleased with the prospect of getting rid of the accumulation, which will now be made available for the paper mills.

The signal to notify residents of the beginning of the drive will be ringing of the large bell at Firemen's hall, Water street, at 9 a. m. Saturday. The bell has been used only occasionally since the large siren was installed to signal the outbreak of fire.

Because of the large amount of paper stored in the community for collection, additional men will be needed to help the Boy Scouts collect and sort the paper. Persons wishing to volunteer their services for a few hours on the day of the drive are asked to notify Mrs. Vernon Rodda at the city hall or go to the NYA building, Park avenue and Center streets after 9 a. m. Saturday.

One additional dump truck is needed to help collect the paper and any concern that can donate the services of a truck and driver on the morning of February 19 should call Walter Mackay at the Cumberland and Westernport bus terminal, Frostburg.

Leaders of the scrap paper drive have pointed out that householders have a great deal by making separate well-tied bundles of their newspapers and magazines. Proper separating and bundling will make it easier to load the paper in the collecting trucks and eliminate a substantial part of sorting that must be done to assure most effective use of the paper collected.

Have a Coca-Cola=Here's to old times

...or welcoming home a sailor son

These days there can be more real welcome in a snack shared in the kitchen than in many an old-time banquet. And with ice-cold Coca-Cola to add refreshment, you have all the makings at hand for a good time. As our men in camp and overseas so often tell, in all the world there's no more cordial invitation than those three familiar American words, "Have a 'Coke'." At your icebox, the same as in P. X.'s around the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the global symbol of American hospitality.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

Rowlesburg Quint, 36-32 Winner Over LaSalle, Plays AHS Tonight

River Lions, Sparked by Heath, Turn Back Explorers at Foul Line in Rough Clash

The Rowlesburg (W. Va.) High River Lions, who extended their season winning streak to seventeen games last night when they handed the LaSalle High Explorers a 36-32 setback in a close but rough battle on the SS. Peter and Paul school court, will move over to Campbellton tonight to meet the Allegheny High Campers at 8 o'clock.

The River Lions, tutored by Homer Brooks, pulled last night's ding-dong contest out of the fire in the last quarter after having an early lead wiped out by the Explorers in the second period. The score was tied six times during the evening and was deadlocked 15-15 at the halfway point and 24-24 at the close of the third session. The West Virginians took a 10-5 lead in the opening chapter.

A foul toss by Don Hooten twenty seconds after the start of the final quarter put Rowlesburg ahead to stay. Bill Cain's doubleheader from the left with forty seconds gone and Harry Heath's foul made it 28-24 before Tommy Geatz counted from the right corner for LaSalle with 2:45 gone.

Three Cagers Foul Out
Heath's basket and foul by Ray Shaffer and Jim Fahey made it 30-28 with less than five minutes to go. Free throws by Jack Pretwell and Heath and Pretwell's twin-pointer from the right with four minutes to play clinched victory for the West Virginians.

Shaffer's foul and a singleton and one-hander by Tommy Geatz made it 34-32 with 1:15 remaining but Shaffer, substituting for Bob Spolt, who went out on fouls after two minutes of the final period, dropped in a layup to put the game out of the Explorers' reach. Only thirty seconds were left when Shaffer connected.

Three players — Spolt and Hooten, of Rowlesburg, and Fahey, of LaSalle — went out on fouls in the final period. Cliff Fearer and Mel "Newt" Henry, the officials, called thirteen persons on each club with LaSalle drawing nine and Rowlesburg eight during the torrid last half.

Heath, the River Lions' ringer forward who was shifted to center for tonight's contest, lived up to advance notices by scoring fourteen points. Pretwell, diminutive Rowlesburg forward, excelled in ball-handling and probably covered more ground during the evening than any of the other players.

Lions Take 10-3 Lead
Rowlesburg outscored LaSalle four to two from the field in the opening round after the Explorers had banged in the first point—Ed Gunning's foul with 1:50 gone. Heath gave the River Lions the edge with a basket from the left but Joe Carter's doubleheader and Hooten's free throw tied the count, 3-3, with four and one-half minutes remaining in the period.

Fielders by Hooten from down under and Pretwell on a one-hand toss and a foul by the latter made it 8-3 and Heath's layup sent the score to 10-3 with forty-five seconds to play. Tommy Geatz's one-hander with a half-minute to go was LaSalle's other field goal of the quarter.

The River Lions remained in front until the final minute of the second period when Tommy Geatz's basket tied it up at 15-15. Earlier, Shaffer tossed in a doubleheader from the left, making it 10-7, but Pretwell's foul, Gunning's basket, Heath's one-hander, two twin-pointers by Carter and Heath's layup, followed by Tommy Geatz's fielder, knotted the count for the second time in the battle.

Field Goals Even
The third period was a give-and-take affair with the score tied four times — at nineteen, twenty-one, twenty-two and twenty-four. Baskets by Cain and Heath, followed by Shaffer's two field goals, kept the figures in a tie. Spolt and Jack Steiner then exchanged doubleheaders, Pretwell and Hooten each converted a foul and Gunning's basket from the left made it 23-23 with 1:25 to go. Free throws by Carter and Pretwell kept the teams even as the period ended.

Each team made thirteen field goals with Rowlesburg winning the clash at the foul stripe where it converted ten of sixteen tosses. LaSalle made only six of its seventeen throws count and converted only one of seven during the first half. Tommy Geatz was the Explorers' top scorer with nine points while Shaffer had eight and Carter seven.

Provided last night's scrap didn't take too much out of the River Lions, they will be favored to extend their streak tonight when they take on Allegheny with Fearer as the referee. The Campers, stopped only by LaSalle and Keyser, have won fifteen of seventeen contests. Last night's lineup:

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis was considerably perturbed over a free-lance query sent to President Roosevelt concerning the status of baseball players in the war program, and the reason is quite obvious. He saw the query as a shout ruining the carefully planned hush-hush policy he has followed pertaining to baseball and war.

He feared the query might be construed as coming officially from baseball, when his every effort has been to keep baseball out of Washington. Not meaning the Washington Senators, naturally. He just doesn't want baseball put in the position of any free-beer lobbyist shilling for favors in capital corridors.

Skating on Thin Ice
In the first place, he realizes sports skate on thin ice in wartime and there are too many people, soldier and civilian, who take the attitude that anyone capable of strenuous activity is capable of shouldering a gun. The fact the athletes haven't been called up, or have been rated 4-F, makes no difference. The attitude remains just the same.

The presence of anyone in Washington representing baseball interests would be taken by these critics as evidence the game was seeking special favors. Whether that was true or not also would make no difference. Such critics believe what they want to believe.

Landis realizes only too well that the game exists only through the good will of government officials who could whiff it out overnight if this good will were punctured by attempts to get special favors.

He wants baseball to remain anonymous among war activities, taking its chances in the service draft the same as other private enterprises, and he knows you can't remain anonymous for long if you start shouting: "Here I am; what about me?"

No Privileges Sought
Baseball, in other words, is just in the ranks in the parade. Government officials, too busy to give the game serious thought, might get to thinking a little about baseball if it was called to their attention and come up with ideas not favorable to this pleasure industry.

The query sent to Washington was the idea of a private individual, and as a free citizen he had a perfect right to seek an opinion. But Landis wishes he hadn't done it. Somebody might get the idea baseball is after some privileges denied 130,000,000 other Americans.

We agree with the commissioner that baseball should keep away from Washington, even by mail, until officially summoned.

Paschal Captures Pro Ball-Carrying Honors for 1943

Giants' Fullback Wins
Championship on One-Play Margin

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO, Feb. 16 (AP)—Bill Paschal, New York Giants' fullback, sat sullenly on the bench last November 7 and watched his team probe for a footing in the mud against Detroit.

Finally he was sent in the game for one play. He clawed two yards through the Lions' line, then came hobbling back to the bench. A smile creased his face, for he at least had been in the game.

But as Sundays came and went thereafter, those two yards became bigger and bigger. When the season was over, Paschal was credited as rookie No. 7 to win the National Football League ball-carrying championship, beating out Jack Hinkle, Phil-Pitt halfback, by a scant yard—a race so close it was without precedent in the pro league's history.

Hinkle's Average Is Tops
Paschal, who joined the army air force after a season of freshman ball for Georgia Tech and later was honorably discharged from the service, today was certified as the 1943 official champion. His seemingly insignificant two-yard gain on one play boosted his totting total to 572 yards in 147 carries. Hinkle posted 571 in 146, and the only satisfaction he could reap was a more creditable average of 4.9 yards to the new champion's 3.9. Harry Clark of the Chicago Bears, was third with 556 yards.

Clark ended his bid first as the Bears closed their season on November 28, with a forty-four-yard lead over his rivals. The next week Hinkle ended Phil-Pitt's schedule by gaining fifty-nine yards against Green Bay and took first place. The following week Paschal piled up ninety-two yards against Washington and displaced Hinkle.

Missed One Contest
Paschal, missing one game because of injuries (against the Chicago Cardinals on November 21), gained half his season's total against Washington in the last two contests of the season when the Giants upset the Redskins twice, necessitating a playoff for the Eastern division title which Washington won.

In the first New York-Washington meeting, the Mond Blitz set a league record for the season by scampering 188 yards in twenty-four attempts, including a fifty-four-yard touchdown jaunt which decided the game. Paschal, Hinkle and Tony Canadeo, of Green Bay, were the only players to make more than 100 yards in a single game during the campaign.

Phil-Pitt unseated the Bears as the team ground-gaining champion, piling up 1,730 yards to 1,651. Phil-Pitt's average, however, was 3.7 per carry, while the Bears' "T" formation dug up 3.9, to lead the league.

Revenuers Win Eighth Straight Cage Battle

In the 9 o'clock nightcap, the Shober combination will be favored to make six straight victories at the expense of the Celanese Spinners, who share the cellar with Green Lantern.

Navy Dribblers Trim Columbia Lions, 65-38

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 16 (AP)—Overcoming a 9-8 lead held by Columbia university after ten minutes of play, Navy's basketball team ran roughshod over the Lions today to win, 65-38.

Columbia Forward Vince Liorodo consistently kept his teammates out in front during the opening minutes of the first half, but Middle Team Captain Kenny Longnecker finally broke through the Lions' defense and chalked up the first of a series of Navy field goals before the half ended, 27-18, in the Tars' favor.

Longnecker was forced to leave the game because of a slight knee injury and Navy Coach Johnny Wilson sent in Jack Carroll, who scored eighteen points before the final gun sounded.

Lion Guard Jim Cumskey brought the Middle cheering section to its feet as he sank four long shots from midcourt in the second half but his efforts proved to be in vain.

Pitt Hoopers Defeat West Virginia, 59-55

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 16 (AP)—Charles (Chuck) Biehl, 18-year old freshman from Wheeling, a student at the University of Pittsburgh but eleven days, became a campus hero tonight by his spectacular work in sparking a final rush which gave the Panthers a 59 to 55 victory over the cagers from West Virginia.

With less than two minutes of play remaining and the Pitt boys clinging to a 54-53 edge, the shoemaker from Stogiesburg looped in two field goals in rapid succession to kill a dangerous rally by the Mountaineers. He earlier had made two other fielders.

Trainer Declares Sun Again Is Back In Pre-Derby Form

Calumet's Problem Horse
Will Run in $7,500
McLennan 'Cap

By BERT COLLIER

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP)—Speaking softly and keeping his fingers crossed, Trainer Ben Jones, of Calumet Farms, said today his Sun Again is in the best form in two years and may turn in a brilliant performance in the $7,500 McLennan handicap at Hialeah park Saturday.

Jones has learned caution in talking about the five-year-old chestnut horse which can be very, very good at times, but he admitted the Florida climate has worked wonders. Sun Again has a habit of developing ailments at critical moments. It was that way before the Kentucky derby two years ago when the horse, brightest prospect among a handful of derby eligibles in the Calumet stable, broke down after finishing second in the Derby trial and was eliminated from the picture. He took only one of his five starts as a three-year-old.

The offspring of Sun Teddy and Hug Again continued as an in-and-outlier in 1943, but has taken a new interest in racing in the past few weeks. He was second to Piccadilly in his first winter outing, then outran a fast field including his flying stablemate, the mare Mar-Kell, at his next try.

The careful Jones is beginning to feel his nomination of Sun Again for the McLennan and the $25,000 Widener two weeks later may pay off after all.

"The horse has returned to his pre-derby form," he declared. "He's never run better since he was a colt. But it's up to him. It's hard to say what may happen when he's running."

Adapted, designed with an understanding of tiny figures. Pattern 9047 is right for every day, pretty as can be for Sunday school or party frock. Note the two versions—the one with "angel wings" makes a cool, comfy dress for warm weather. You can quickly stitch up several!

Pattern 9047 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6 requires one and 3/4 yards thirty-five inch fabric.

Send sixteen cents in coins for this pattern to the Cumberland News, 39, Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York 11, N. Y. Write plainly size, name, address, style number.

Ten cents more brings our 1944 Marian Martin spring pattern book. New, easy-to-make styles. Free pattern printed in book.

She alleges that she suffered severe injuries to her shoulder and hip and has required medical attention ever since the accident occurred on February 20, 1941.

Commissioners Favor Salary Adjustments

Representatives of the Western Shore boards of county commissioners voted unanimously yesterday to recommend to the state legislature that steps be taken for continuance of teacher salary adjustments for the duration.

Meeting in Baltimore, the group also started a move for increased county rule in welfare administration and a committee of attorneys from Washington, Carroll and Frederick counties was appointed to study methods of restoring more home rule, whether by amendment or outright repeal of sections of the state law opposed.

Particular attention will be given in the attorneys' investigation, it was revealed, to that part of the state welfare law which gives the state board the authority to adopt rules and regulations which shall have the force and effect of law.

Another law which brought criticism and will be the object of proposed repeal is that which permits the arrest of children for non-support of parents.

J. Keller Shank, president of the Washington county commissioners board who presided at the meeting, said that the commissioners were "preponderantly in favor of some change in the present relief law to give more authority to local officials."

"They were critical of the welfare organization's development into a huge money-spending program," Shank declared.

He pointed out that principal criticism of relief matters centered around the right of the state administration to fix salaries of local board members and the provision requiring commissioners of the various counties to appropriate without question funds to match state relief money.

Simon W. Green, president, represented the Allegany county officials at the meeting.

Secret Service Seeks To Prevent Theft of Checks

Agent Cautions Merchants to Know Endorser, Demand Identification

A campaign to prevent the theft and forgery of government checks has been undertaken by the United States Secret Service, an agent said here yesterday.

Pointing out that organized gangs are stealing and forging the checks in some cities, the agent said it is the aim of the secret service, a division of the Treasury department, to educate merchants to "know your endorser—require identification."

In one instance, the agent said, gangs follow the mail carrier and steal all the mail, including both bills and checks, after they have been delivered.

Then the bills and checks are taken to stores, the statements used as identification, are paid, and the thief and forger pockets the change.

There is an increasing number of checks in the mails now, such as allotments, social security, retirement, disability and veteran's compensation, the agent said, warning that "just because a check is from the government doesn't mean it's good. It becomes worthless once it bears a forged endorsement."

All merchants who cash checks, he emphasized, should positively know their endorsers. Each merchant should ask himself, the agent added, "If this check is returned, will I know who gave it to me?"

When cashing or accepting checks, the agent said, merchants primarily should demand identification and remember that lodge cards, Social Security cards, automobile licenses, letters and the like also can be forged or stolen.

The merchant should always demand that the person cashing the check endorse in his presence and check refuse to accept any checks that show any alteration of their face.

Several suggestions also were mentioned for the good of persons receiving checks. These included that some member of the family should remain at home when the check is due to be delivered, the name of the resident should be clearly printed on the mailbox, checks should be cashed in the same place each month and checks should be endorsed only in the presence of the person who will cash them.

17 Box Car Loads Sent to Mills from Cumberland since November 6

Wastepaper collections in Cumberland from November 6 to February 5, inclusive, have netted a grand total of 545,071 pounds or 27½ tons for the war effort, according to figures released yesterday by Kenneth E. Jackson, chief executive of Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America.

This amount of paper has filled seventeen box cars which were dispatched to mills in Maryland, Michigan and Virginia.

Two Women File Suit For Absolute Divorce On Desertion Charges

Two suits for absolute divorce were filed on the chancery docket in circuit court here yesterday.

Elizabeth Wright Joy entered suit against Paul Winton Joy, whom she charges with desertion. The bill of complaint states that they were married in January, 1927, and lived together until August, 1940. One child, who resides with Mrs. Joy, was born of the marriage.

Mrs. Joy, who is represented by Noel Spier Cook, attorney, asks custody of the child. The defendant is a resident of Los Angeles, Calif.

Also on grounds of desertion, Ella Abey seeks an absolute divorce from John E. Abey, to whom she was married in November, 1936. They lived together until February, 1942, and had two children, both of whom reside with the plaintiff.

Mrs. Abey asks that the court grant her custody of the children and order the defendant to pay counsel fees and permanent alimony.

A court order, issued by Associate Judge William A. Huster, directs Abey to pay $400 in counsel fees and $20 bi-weekly alimony pending final settlement of the suit, unless cause to the contrary is shown on or before February 26. Edward J. Ryan is attorney for the plaintiff.

Adequate Timber Stock Is Assured By Forestry Law

Some Trees Must Be Left Standing after Lumbering Operations

Adequate growing stocks of young timber in woodland areas in Maryland are provided for in a regulation established by the commission of state forest and parks, specifying the number of sound, thrifty trees of commercial species to be left standing after lumbering operations, Joseph F. Kaylor, state forester, announced yesterday.

The action on the part of the commission, he said, was taken in accordance with the terms of the Forest Conservancy Districts act, which went into effect the first of the year.

The regulation provides that there shall be left 100 trees from four to eight and nine-tenth inches in diameter at four and one-half feet above the ground, or twenty trees from nine to eleven and nine-tenth inches, or eight trees of diameters of twelve inches and up.

In addition, according to the regulation, all sound, thrifty young trees less than four inches in diameter must be left standing, with due care taken to prevent injury to them during logging.

This regulation, Kaylor said, asks nothing more than the practice ordinarily followed by timber owners who aim to keep their holdings continuously productive. It represents, he added, a common-sense provision for future crops and steady money returns from landowners.

It will also mean, he pointed out, that wood-using industries will not have to go outside the state for most of their raw materials as they do now at an added cost for freight charges.

Both landowners and local wood-using industries, Kaylor declared, will profit equally from home-grown timber.

Man Files Damage Suit For Inability To Get His Share of Corn Crop

Suit for $700 for two-thirds of a corn crop which he alleges he planted, cut and shucked for the defendant was filed in circuit court yesterday by Carl Beck, of this city, against Millard Rice, Baltimore Pike farmer, and his son, Edgar S. Rice, 225 Pennsylvania avenue.

Beck contends that he entered into an agreement with the Rices whereby they would give to him two-thirds of the corn crop which he was to plant and take care of but when the time came for the fruit of his labors to be divided according to the agreement, they refused to permit him to complete his share.

The Rices are charged with taking advantage of Beck's work and labor and keeping the full corn crop all to his "detrimment." The plaintiff also contends that they refused to adjust with him for the corn that was placed on the premises and that he has been greatly damaged as a result of their failure to keep the agreement.

Edward J. Ryan is attorney for the plaintiff.

Engineers Hear Washburn Discuss Aviation Problems

Local Club Members Invited To Attend Hagers-town Meeting Tonight

The problem in aviation today is not the design of the airplane to reach certain altitudes but the ability of the pilot to take it, George O. Weddell, Pittsburgh, branch manager of the York Corporation, told members of the Cumberland Engineering Club last night at a meeting held at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club, in speaking on "Low Temperature Refrigeration."

Stressing this point, Weddell said, a pilot at 12,000 feet begins to feel ill and in a short time he has a headache and dulled reflexes; at 16,000 feet, his heart starts to pound and his lips turn blue, but he feels good; at 20,000 feet his vision becomes blurred, but he does not realize he is in a bad way; at 25,000 feet he would die in thirty minutes and at 34,000 feet he would become unconscious in one minute and dead in five minutes, if exposed to the altitude without oxygen.

Equipment Is Tested

The speaker pointed out the importance of the strato-chamber to test the special procession equipment in assimilated conditions up to 40,000 feet, as to pressure and temperature, and to ascertain the effect of the altitude on the pilot. In these chambers, called "fall weather rooms," Weddell said, not only temperatures ranging from plus 120 degrees to minus 67 degrees are reproduced, but also such conditions as rain, snow, icing and sandstorms, with varying intensity. In this way he said all types of equipment are tested and permits the development of protection devices for pilots in all conditions.

New developments in refrigeration are taking place all the time, the speaker said. For instance there is a new refrigeration called "freon-22," which has been developed for low temperature refrigeration work. In expanding this topic, he said, that refrigeration is moving forward in great strides and in the years to come frozen foods will be the standard. Equipment for fast freezing and storage of fruits and vegetables will be standard in many homes, he added.

Program Chairman Named

Members of the Cumberland club are invited to the meeting of the Southern Engineering Society in Hagerstown this evening, Joseph Whitesel announced. Col. J. S. Jorinski, Washington, D. C., chief war plans division office, chief of the engineers of the United States of America, will be the speaker. He has just returned from an inspection tour of England, Africa and the front lines in Italy, and will give a first hand picture of the engineering operations under combat conditions in the European theater.

Joseph Washburn was appointed the new program chairman; and Frank Tepper announced plans were completed for the club dance on February 25 at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Planning Commission To Meet with Zoning Expert from Baltimore

Zoning as a part of Cumberland's postwar development will be discussed by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission at a meeting Monday with J. C. Grinnalls, of the Baltimore Zoning Board.

Adoption of a zoning ordinance covering such matters as use, heights of buildings, lot coverage, yards, enforcement and a board of appeal was recommended in a recent report by Whitman, Requardt and Associates, Baltimore engineers, who are making a general survey of local conditions.

I. Alvin Passarew, Baltimore executive director of the Maryland Commission on Postwar Reconstruction and Development, is expected to attend the Chamber of Commerce postwar panel discussion next Tuesday.
